KEY SELLING POINTS

- All of Eddy Arnold's 1951-1955 recordings available for the first time ever in one collection!
- The roots of Arnold's popular country-politan sound!
- Contains Arnold's first-ever session with string accompaniment, later a trademark of his recordings.
- Includes major hits There's Been A Change In Me, I Wanna Play House With You, A Full-Time Job, You Don't Know Me and many others!
- Features Arnold's fabled April 28, 1955, session with arranger and conductor Hugo Winterhalter which produced four Top 10 country hits, including the chart-topping Cattle Call!
- Finally, the unreleased original recording of Arnold's 1954 No. 1 hit I Really Don't Want To Know, featuring only Arnold on guitar and Charles Grean on bass!
- Highlights the sterling instrumentals of Nashville Sound masters Chet Atkins, Hank 'Sugarfoot' Garland, Marvin Hughes, and Bob Moore, and New York session kings Al Chernet, George Barnes, and Marty Gold!
- 44 songs and performances are previously unissued.

SALES NOTES

The latest Eddy Arnold release on Bear Family finds the country music king in transition, coming off his super hits of the late 1940s and yearning to shed his 'Tennessee Plowboy' moniker. Although the collection opens with the decidedly rustic Tennessee Hillbilly Ghost, by the early 1950s Arnold was telling everybody that he wanted to be "a singer of songs"—not just country songs. This collection tracks Arnold's evolution from country warbler to aspiring pop crooner, as he made New York his primary recording home and chose to wax standards such as Moonlight And Roses, Angry, and Unchained Melody. By the 1960s, Arnold had helped make lush sounds acceptable in the country music world. This is where it all began.
